

Task 1: Read the story ‘Back to School Blues’ and do as directed:

Jimmy sighed as he looked at the calendar. Tomorrow’s date was circled in red and there was a skull and crossbones drawn in the box. He groaned and slapped at the calendar.

“What are you doing?” His sister Susan asked.

“I’m looking at the calendar.”

“I see that, but why are you hitting it?”

“I don’t want to go back to school yet.” He whined. “I can’t help it. I don’t want to get up early, do homework every night, and sit in those uncomfortable seats for hours.”

“So what is your alternative? Will you live under a bridge?” Susan snorted, amused by the idea.

Jimmy shook his head. “No, I could be a superstar in sports or a famous actor.”

Susan smirked. “Good luck at age eleven. Most athletes and actors struggle for years to get where they are, and most of them are educated. I don’t really think you have developed any super talents yet, and you aren’t particularly handsome, either.”

“That’s not nice!” Jimmy protested.

“Sorry to break it to you, but a little honesty might help sometimes. Besides, homework gets you out of chores at home. Dad doesn’t make us do as much when we have homework.”

“True.”

“And TV is way more fun when you only have time for a little of it. Sitting in front of it for hours is boring.” Susan continued. Each thing she said destroyed another reason for disliking school.

“Also true.” Jimmy admitted.

“And all of our friends are at school.” Susan pointed out.

“Alright, I get it. School isn’t all bad.” Jimmy finally admitted.

Susan smiled. “Nope.”

“I don’t have to like it though.”

“You will, though.” Susan promised, smiling.

Somehow, Jimmy thought she was right. Friends, pizza for school lunch, less chores... there were a lot of reasons to like school.
